Chapter 4 – Service Level Agreement

32. General provisions

32.1. Introduction

This chapter constitutes the Service Level Agreement between Rubyx and You regarding the use of the Application as defined in Article 24.2. It sets forth each Party’s responsibilities, defines each Party’s Service Levels and outlines the applicable procedures in case of non-compliance or performance problems.

This SLA shall be attached as a schedule to the Agreement between Rubyx and You. All abbreviations, terms and definitions set forth in Article 3 of the Terms and Conditions shall apply to this SLA.

Implementation details (how services and obligations are executed) are not contained in this SLA.

32.2. Non-compliance

In case a Party fails to meet the service, levels set forth in this SLA, that Party shall:

- Analyse the causes of the failure;
- Determine the necessary corrective measures;
- Take the corrective measures; and
- Report the findings to the other Party.

33. Incident management

Rubyx offers You a dedicated support channel that serves as a central contact point for the Application.

33.1. Dedicated channel

The support channel can be reached via email at support@rubyx.io.

33.2. Incident types

Incident Priority	Definition
Priority 1 (blocker) High Risk	An existing infrastructure or a major functionality of the Application has a complete/global unavailability with critical impact to the End Users or Yours business operations.
Priority 2 (critical) Medium Risk	Operation of an existing infrastructure of the Application is severely degraded, or significant aspects of Your's business operations are being negatively impacted by impaired performance.
Priority 3 (normal) Low Risk	Operational performance of the infrastructure is impaired while most business operations remain functional.

33.3. Incident response process

For each incident, the Rubyx support service will follow this process

1. Identification: detection and reporting of the incident
2. Coordination: triage and engagement of the responsible person/team
3. Resolution: investigation, containment & recovery
4. Closure: communication of the results with possible post-mortem analysis for continuous improvement

33.4. Incident SLA's

The following SLAs are applicable to the whole D6 Platform as described in section Incident types. Some exceptions apply, see chapter SLA exceptions.

	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3
Reaction time	<3h	<5h	<10h
Intervention time	Immediately after Reaction time	Immediately	Next Business day
Resolution time	48h	<4 Business Days	<7 Business Days

Reported Incidents: in order to be addressed, an incident should be reported and properly documented by You, and you should provide all relevant information required by the support channel. In the absence of such a documented report, the SLA may not apply.

Reaction time: time between the report of a possible incident and first reply by Rubyx. The reaction time starts (i) upon reception of the email during Belgian business days between 9 AM and 17 PM Belgian Time or (ii) upon reception of the email outside Belgian business days at the soonest at 9AM Belgian Time on the first Belgian business day following the receipt of the email

Intervention time: time between the report of a possible incident and the undertaking of the first actions to manage it

Resolution time: time between the report of a possible incident and its final resolution including all impacts on clients business operations

33.5. Contingency plan

In case of platform unavailability above 3 hours, Rubyx will share an extraction of all scored customers with their score and details of any available offer.

33.6. SLA exceptions

Rubyx cannot guarantee resolution times for:

- Data extraction and upload: when the incident originates from the extraction and upload of the data by clients on the Application, either in a late, wrong or incomplete manner.
- External circumstances: Rubyx is not responsible for external, unforeseen circumstances that can impact the functioning or the management of the services and which is beyond the reasonable control of Rubyx, including i.a. pandemics, force majeure, global internet outage or delays, or sudden regulatory changes.

33.7. Availability management

The Application is designed to offer high availability.

Below are the guaranteed SLAs.

Product SLA	Description	Measuring	Value
Platform availability	Access to data in D6 Warehouse™ tables . Excluded planned downtime.	Monitoring by querying D6 Warehouse™ through web UI Measuring 1 year & reporting window : 1 month	99,0% Maximum 7.2 hours downtime/month

35. Data Management

35.1. Data freshness

Rubyx guarantees nightly refresh that makes previous day's data available on the Application. Rubyx and You agree on a time at which data must be made available by You on the Application. You are responsible for the respect of this time, and Rubyx cannot be held responsible for any incidents due to the lack of respect of this agreed time.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, Rubyx guarantees a maximal duration between data upload on the Application and its availability in the D6 Warehouse™ of six hours.

35.2. Data quality

Upon signature of the Agreement, Rubyx shall provide You the necessary documentation about format and contents of data to be uploaded on the Platform by the Customer. Rubyx might change its requirements to adapt to Your specific needs or to adapt to Your systems. The documentation will cover the format, name of the files containing the data, times and location of delivery of the files by You, name, order, format, content, examples and definition of the fields to be extracted.

Rubyx guarantees that the format and contents of the data as defined by the above documents are reflected in the actual data included in the D6 Warehouse™. Rubyx is not responsible for mismatches or errors arising from data provided by You non-compliant with the above mentioned documentation.

Data quality issues will be treated according to the above incident response process.

Rubyx and You will guarantee data quality as defined according to a list of metrics. For each metric, minimum thresholds of compliance must be respected. Metrics with non compliant values will be treated according to the above incident response process as blocker, critical or normal issues.

-------------------	--	--------	--	--

The compliance to the list of data quality metrics will be reviewed every quarter and Rubyx will be responsible for all incidents arising from its ETL and data pipelines.

35.3. Data retention

Rubyx guarantees an immediate availability of data of the last 36-months period ($\geq 99.9\%$ of monthly uptime percentage availability). Data between 36 and 60 months will be archived in so-called “cold” buckets who guarantee a 99.0% of monthly uptime percentage availability. Beyond 60 months, Rubyx doesn't guarantee the availability of data.

36. Business continuity and disaster recovery

36.1. Data backup and recovery

Rubyx backups data creating a tier-based system. Data are migrated to an archive tier after 36 months when the requirement to access the backed-up data is less likely

36.2. Database backup and recovery

In our cloud-based D6 Warehouse™ data is replicated throughout multiple locations so as to minimize the probability of data loss. Referring to corruption of the tables themselves we adopt the following practices:

- If the corruption is caught within 7 days, it is still possible to recover the table prior to the corruption.
- Data is stored in different tables for each day. This method ensures that we would only have to restore a subset of data in a new table, rather than a complete dataset.
- The original data of the D6 Warehouse™ is also stored in D6 data buckets. This allows us to easily recreate a new table from the original data and reload the uncorrupted data. From there, we can adjust our applications to point to the new table.

37. Change management and Service Requests

As Rubyx is the owner of the Application, any modification to the Application (a “Change”) will be controlled by Rubyx. If for any case, a platform Change is needed, You can file a request to Rubyx Support: support@rubyx.io. This Change will be integrated in the Rubyx product process where decisions, timings and releases are discussed. You will get notified when the Change will (or will not) be implemented.

Next to theChanges, You can also file a “Service Request”. This request is also to be filed to Rubyx Support. The latter will do an intake of the request, align (if necessary) with the underlying parties, and will inform You about the feasibility, timing and cost of the request. Once approved by You, Rubyx will execute the Service Request. If a cost is involved, this will be invoiced in the next invoice run.

38. Release management

38.1. Release planning

Rubyx is using the Agile principles in his development and release process (story definition, backlog, sprint planning, release). All releases are tested in our test and acceptance environment. You will receive the release notes by email 5 days before the release. These release notes will describe the user stories implemented in the particular release.

38.2. Planned downtime

Planned downtime will be scheduled on fixed dates with a 10-days notice and contingency plan will be set up to guarantee minimal continuity of service.

Rubyx will not ask for explicit permission to You when releasing a new version of its platform provided that such a new version will not affect Your rights under this agreement.

Planned downtime does contain following types:

- scheduled releases;
- emergency release (e.g. correctives);
- service requests which imply a downtime

39. Data Protection

Data is automatically encrypted while in transit and at rest, and can only be accessed by the authorized roles and services with audited access to the encryption keys. Within the Application, data is also automatically replicated and encrypted for backup and disaster recovery. When data is ready to be deleted, a specific procedure, in accordance with service-specific policies, must be followed to delete data permanently.

40. Data warehousing and security

Rubyx relies on a third-party service provider chosen at its discretion to host the Application and the data uploaded on the Platform by Customer.

Rubyx currently relies on the services of Google Cloud and shall offer at least the same warranties as those described in Google Cloud's terms of service are available on <https://cloud.google.com/terms>.

Google Cloud's technical and organizational measures to protect the hosted data against accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorized disclosure or access are consequently applicable to the Application and the data uploaded on the Platform by Customer. The current version of such Data Processing and Security Terms is available on <https://cloud.google.com/terms/data-processing-terms> and the detailed description of the security measures is available on <https://cloud.google.com/terms/data-processing-terms#appendix-2:-security-measures>.

In addition, Rubyx implements and maintains its own technical and organizational measures to protect your data against the aforementioned events. Rubyx ensures inter alia (i) that any employee or contractor is bound by a confidentiality undertaking, (ii) that data are made available to employees or contractors only on a need-to-know basis and (iii) that employees and contractors use separate work environments so as to avoid accidental access to data.
